INTRODUCTION.

THIS BOOK is the result of the labors of a man who has lived more than a quarter of a century continuously in Springfield, and has consequently seen it more than treble in population, wealth, railroad facilities, manufacturing enterprises, and all that goes to make it a desirable place of residence and for business. The fact that he knows personally, and is known to, one or more in almost every family in the city and its suburbs, has been an important factor in obtaining accurate and complete information.

He takes pleasure in the reflection that he is not under the necessity of going from home to have his work done, but that the printing and binding attests the skill of Springfield workmen, thus making it wholly a home production. In this he sets an example worthy of imitation by all. If every citizen would do all he could to have every article sold here manufactured here, we would soon have a city of half a million inhabitants. We have inexhaustible mines of coal, and may have an equal supply of water by displaying the proper enterprise. We have railroads radiating to more than twice the cardinal points of the compass. We have street railroads reaching from the center to all parts of the circumference of the city, with many other advantages not necessary here to enumerate. We are in the center of a large area of the richest country on the globe, and can feed, with all the staples of life, armies of operatives. We have a successful watch factory and an iron mill, each on a mammoth scale, with a woolen mill, paper mill, machine shops, printing offices, etc., etc. Why not have cotton mills, plow factories, boot and shoe factories, furniture factories, with thousands of others, even to the seemingly insignificant pins and needles, but really gigantic on account of the enormous numbers used by high and low, rich and poor? Here is the place to sell. Why not manufacture here, and by that means have something to sell?

HISTORICAL.

SPRINGFIELD, one of the brightest gems in the crown of the proud Sucker State, is one of the most beautiful cities in the broad West. But a few years ago Springfield was a small, steady-going old foggy town, while to-day she is a live, bright, rushing city, onward and upward on her resistless march. Situated in the richest portion of the great State of Illinois, with a most cultivated, enterprising population, the seat of culture and refinement, there is nothing too bright or too promising for her in the near future. With the iron arms of over a half dozen railroads reaching out like vast arteries through the city, bringing to us the marvelous grain products of the rich Prairie State, we find our marts are busy and full of life. A few short years ago the Capital City was a wild, barren waste; to-day her inhabitants number over thirty thousand. Among the many advantages presented by the Capital City, none is greater than her system of public schools. The educational advantages of Springfield, both public and private, cannot be excelled, and in enumerating her riches, she may well exclaim, as she points to her tall and stately school houses, "These are my jewels." The manufacturing interests of Springfield are very large, and constantly growing. Among the numerous large establishments must be mentioned our magnificent Rolling Mill, one of the largest in the Western country, and whose operations are of such magnitude as to almost surpass belief. The Watch Factory is another vast establishment, constantly growing, and giving employment to an almost countless army of operatives, whilst its products rank with the very highest and best. A large and perfectly equipped Woolen Mill does an enormous business, while a Powder Mill, Plow Factory and an enormous Cotton Mill will soon be numbered with the gigantic manufacturing enterprises of our city.

With the best coal in the country at our very doors, with unexcelled railroad facilities, no city can offer stronger and better inducements to the capitalist to invest his surplus cash in manufacturing. Street cars penetrate nearly every part of the city — whilst new lines will soon be completed. Our Fire Department has no superior in the whole State ; our Flour Mills the best in the country, whilst the religious and educational interest of the Capital are indeed worthy of emulation and commendation.

Finally, with the many advantages Springfield can offer, there is no point in our broad domain more worthy the attention or presenting better inducements as a home for the capitalist, the artizan or the cosmopolite, than the object of this sketch, the beautiful Capital of the Sucker State.

STREET DIRECTORY.

First street is the dividing line between East and West. Beginning with No. 100 on the southeast corner of First and Washington, numbering East to Avenue, 1830, (18 blocks.) On the southwest corner of First and Washington, No. 100, going West to 934. On the northeast corner of First and Washington, No. 101 East to 1831. The numbers on the south side of all the East and West streets are EVEN and on the North side ODD. The North and South streets number each way from Washington street, EVEN numbers East side and on odd numbers on West side.
